DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3, 5, 9-11, 13-14, 17-24 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Miller 6,620,094 in view of any one of Nielsen et al USPN, 6839,447, Killion et al. USPN 5,524,056, Borstel USPN 4,467,145, Nordqvist et al USPN 6,862,359 or applicant's admitted prior art in paragraph [0011] of applicant's specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4, 6-8, 12, 15-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Miller 6,620,094 alone or in view of Griffith et al. USPN 6,842,647.

To have placed the signal processors on the same chip would have been obvious to ease manufacturing. Providing impedance matching between interface system 301 of Miller and the speech processor would be a notoriously old and well know to prevent unwanted reflections. Alternatively, to have modified Miller so as to provide an implanted speech processor within implantable portion 306 of Miller and provided an impedance matching circuit between the interface unit and the implant device would have been an obvious improvement as a well known alternative demonstrated by Griffith et al USPN 6,842,647. Such would entail at least one of the plurality of input devices to be placed in the second case.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 8-12-2009 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant's sole argued difference between the combined references is that the device is retrofit, a feature that seems more suited for a method claim. The examiner considers the external device to "retro fit" with the internal component. The examiner also considers it obvious for a manufacturer to make new components compatible with older designs. To have made the external component of the Miller device compatible with various other implantable elements made by the manufacture would have been an obvious business practice.
